Dear General Manager/Transit Executive/DOT Head:

I am writing to invite you to nominate an outstanding transit professional to serve as a member of the fall 2010 study mission on Public Transportation Systems as the Foundation for Economic Growth.

Public transportation systems can be highly effective drivers of economic growth. Investments to improve and enhance transit systems are considered essential to the economy, culture, and quality of life in many cities throughout the world. This study mission will investigate how transit investments are linked to economic growth in several cities in South Africa, Egypt, and Turkey.

In South Africa, the government has made significant investments in rail upgrades, BRT systems, intermodal facilities, metro services, and mobility enhancements in cities hosting this year's World Cup games. Egypt's government, recognizing the linkage between transportation and economic growth, has made public transportation improvements a priority. In Turkey, the Marmaray tunnel, currently under construction, will connect Istanbul to its eastern suburbs and make travel to and from the city center much more efficient, drawing commuters from their cars to public transport, reducing traffic congestion, and cutting greenhouse gases.

Participants in this study mission will meet with public transport authorities and agencies in South Africa, Egypt, and Turkey to learn about their transit systems and how those systems are being used to foster economic growth and recovery. The mission will be led by Stephen Bland, CEO of the Port Authority of Allegheny County (Pennsylvania).

The mission is scheduled to be conducted October 29 through November 12, 2010.

Please consider nominating a transit leader—or an up-and-coming leader—for this study team. Nominees must be in a management-level position at a U.S. transit agency, a state department of transportation, or other non-operating agency that plays a major role in planning or financing public transportation in the United States. Twelve transit professionals will be selected from among the nominees; no more than one person from each agency will be selected. More detailed information about eligibility is attached.

All travel costs (airfare, ground transportation, hotels, and per diem) are paid by the International Transit Studies Program. Please note: This is an intense learning experience, involving long days and a good amount of walking each day as the group travels to meetings with agencies in various locations throughout each city.

The deadline for nominations is Thursday, August 26, at 5 pm (eastern time); team members will be notified of their selection by September 10.

This will be the 33d study mission conducted since the program's inception in 1994. More than 400 transit managers in urban and rural communities throughout the United States have participated to date.

The International Transit Studies Program is sponsored by the Transit Cooperative Research Program and funded by the Federal Transit Administration. The primary purpose of the program is to broaden the professional development of U.S. transit managers by providing them with opportunities to gain firsthand knowledge about transit systems in other countries; team members return with insight and information that is useful not only to their own careers, but also to their organizations and the transit industry as a whole. More information about the International Transit Studies Program is available at www.tcrpstudiesmissions.com.

Each team member will be responsible for writing a report on an aspect of the mission theme; the individual reports will then be edited into a single report that will be published by the Transportation Research Board.

The complete nomination package must be received by 5 pm (eastern time) on Thursday, August 26, 2010. Instructions and a cover sheet for the nomination packet are attached.

If you have any questions, please contact me at 443-385-0300 or at khh@tcrpstudiesmissions.com.

Kathryn Harrington-Hughes

Eligibility Information and Nomination Instructions

Public Transportation Systems as the Foundation for Economic Growth

An International Transit Study Mission To Be Conducted October 29-November 12, 2010

Nominations are now being accepted for the fall 2010 TCRP International Transit Study Program mission, which will focus on “Public Transportation Systems as the Foundation for Economic Growth.” The mission team will meet with transit agencies in several cities in South Africa, Egypt, and Turkey (tentatively including Johannesburg, Cairo, and Istanbul) to learn about existing and planned transit services and how public transport investments are linked to economic development, growth, and recovery. The mission will be led by Steve Bland, CEO of the Port Authority of Allegheny County.

Eligibility Requirements

- Nominees must have demonstrated leadership capability or have strong potential for leadership, and they must be dedicated to continuing their career in public transportation.
- Nominees must be able to participate in the entire mission (October 29-November 12, 2010).
- Nominees must be willing to write and submit a mission report on an aspect of the mission theme within 60 days of the conclusion of the mission (report topics will be assigned by the team leader).
- Nominees must be serving in a full-time, on-site, management-level position at a US transit agency, state department of transportation, or other non-operating agency playing a major role in planning or financing public transit. Nominees may be either directly employed by the agency or employed under a contract with a service provider. Private-sector contract employees must, however, include with their nomination materials an endorsement letter from the GM or CEO of the public agency (or, when the nominee is the GM/CEO, from the board chair of the public agency).

Note—Individuals in the following positions or categories are not eligible: consultants, academicians, labor union representatives, members of the Transit Cooperative Research Program Oversight and Project Selection (TOPS) Committee, members of the International Transit Studies Program project panel, local board members, elected officials, participants in prior TCRP study missions, and contract employees who are principal officers of the firm and who are actively involved in the solicitation of other business engagements or who provide overall business direction and strategy to the firm.

Nomination Instructions

1. Ensure that the nominee meets the eligibility requirements listed above.
2. Prepare a letter of nomination on agency/organization letterhead.
3. Attach a copy of the nominee’s resume.
4. Attach a statement of interest from the nominee (no more than 2 pages long).
Nominees: Your statement should set forth your reasons for wanting to participate in this study mission. It should describe how you and your agency expect to benefit from your participation, and how you would share what you learn with your coworkers and others in the transit industry. Include a brief description of your organization, including fleet size, type, and budget.
5. Attach a letter of endorsement from the chief executive officer of the nominee’s agency (or, if the nominee is the CEO, from the board chair or equivalent). (Note: If the letter is signed by anyone other than the chief executive officer, a letter of signing authority must accompany the letter of nomination.) If the letter of nomination is from the CEO, there is no need for a separate letter of endorsement. Private-sector contract employees must include an endorsement letter from the GM/CEO of the public agency (or from the board chair in cases where the nominee is the GM/CEO).
6. Complete the nomination cover sheet (attached) and attach proof that the nominee meets the passport requirement (below).
7. Submit the complete nomination package (single sided) by 5 pm (eastern time) on Thursday, August 26, 2010, to the address below. Nominations received after the deadline will not be considered. Since all materials will be photocopied for the selection panel, we encourage you to submit the original documents by mail or delivery service; however, fax copies will be accepted. NOTE: Email confirmation of receipt of nomination materials will be sent to the nominee; if you do not receive a confirmation by noon (eastern time) on Friday, August 27, call Kathryn Harrington-Hughes at 443-385-0300 immediately.

Passport Requirement

Applicants should submit with their nomination package proof that they have a passport valid through June 2011 or that they have recently applied for a new or renewed passport. Information on how to apply for or renew a passport is available at http://travel.state.gov/passport/passport_1738.html.

Selection Process

Nominations will be reviewed by the TCRP panel with oversight for the International Transit Studies Program. Twelve participants will be selected from among the nominations received (with no more than one person selected from any one agency). The panel considers the following criteria when selecting study team members:

- Current responsibilities of the nominee
- Career objectives of the nominee
- How the nominee expects to benefit from participating in the program
- Potential benefits to the nominee's agency
- Endorsement from chief executive officer of the nominee's agency (or, if the nominee is the CEO, from the board chair or equivalent). If the nominee is a private-sector contract employee, the nomination must include an endorsement letter from the GM/CEO of the public agency (or from the board chair in cases where the nominee is the GM/CEO).
- Team diversity
- Geographical balance of team
- Mix of relevant disciplines on the team
- Program's emphasis on professional development

Deadline for Nominations

The deadline for receipt of nominations is 5 pm eastern time on Thursday, August 26, 2010.

Program Sponsors

The International Transit Studies Program is sponsored by the Transit Cooperative Research Program (TCRP) and is funded by the Federal Transit Administration. All travel costs for the mission participants are paid by the International Transit Studies Program. TCRP is administered by the National Academies, acting through its Transportation Research Board, in cooperation with the Transit Development Corporation (the educational and research arm of the American Public Transportation Association) and the Federal Transit Administration. Harrington-Hughes & Associates Inc. plans, manages, and conducts the program under a contract with the National Academies.
